This B.R.E.A.T.H.E. acronym was developed after I had a particularly emotional day. I felt extremely overwhelmed and the sensations created a feeling of panic. There was an inciting factor [I.F.], which I have come to be aware of, as it has appeared throughout the years. Now that I am mindful of it, I am able to preemptively neutralize the emotional tsunami with my b.r.e.a.t.h.e. acronym. I also recognized that in periods of intense emotions, we completely lose our clarity and focus, which causes us to jump to some irrational conclusions and make some unhealthy decisions and choices.

When you learn how to breathe effectively (slowly and deeply, focusing on the movement of air into your body) and add these affirmations, you can not only regain your equilibrium, but you can also tap into the power within you. If you believe, you must learn to trust. TRUST that God is always in control and can make all things right. God has promised to meet our every need, and God always keeps His promises. This does not mean that there will not be discomfort; however, when you learn to be still and trust God through reciting these affirmations, you will give yourself time to calm down and allow God to work with you and through you. The discomfort of our emotions and feelings is TRANSIENT.

Stress is a part of life, and so is breathing. We have at our disposal an amazing gift that we often take for granted. Breathing, it is an absolute necessity for life, which in the moment of panic [intense emotions] can also help us to regain our composure and calm. How appropriate, a breath of air clears out the cobwebs, the fog, and brings clarity [you can see the situation clearly and realize there is no need].

BE STILL, TRUST & B.R.E.A.T.H.E.

This can be practiced daily as a breathing meditation.

The benefits of this acronym increase with practice.

Of course, use it when it's most needed – periods of stress and intense negative emotions/feelings/thoughts.
